

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for transferring information between multiple buyers and multiple vendors is provided. Information is received from a plurality of sources.

- 5 This information corresponds to a plurality of products. This information is stored in a first database. A request is received. The request concerns a portion of the information stored in the first database. The request is then retrieved from the first database and posted to a second database. Access is provided to subsets of the second database to a plurality of subscribers.